CONSTANTINOS DOXIADIS: The ecumenical vision of a contemporary Greek

a PANEL DISCUSSION with:

John Peponis, Georgia Tech School of Architecture
Costis Torgas, George Washington University Vassilis Koliatsos, Johns Hopkins University and Apostolos Doxiadis

Moderated by Charis Lypiridis, The World Bank

This extraordinary panel will deal with the life and work of Constantinos Doxiadis, a legendary Renaissance Greek who transformed modern architecture and foreshadowed the importance of networks. SPGH brings the topic to the attention of the DC community as part of a series of events on modern Greek identity.

The thought and impact of Constantinos Doxiadis (1913 –1975) on contemporary settlements is difficult to be compared. His ecumenical vision and practice provides a reference in planning for development, globally and in Greece. The creation of Islamabad, the design of Georgetown D.C. waterfront area, his landmark catalogue on the “Sacrifices of Greece in WWII”, his various WBG assignments, the Order of British Empire recognition and the Aspen Award for Humanities, describe only indicatively the multi-facet size of his work. On Thursday November 5, 2015 at the historic Sulgrave Club SPGH will bring together a distinguished panel that will discuss the significance of Doxiadis thought and achievements, in the context of an ecumenical identity for Greece.
